

Improving public services through ambitious targets and tough sanctions for failure

LSE's evidence-based research into health services has shown how and when ambitious targets and tough sanctions can improve performance of public service

What was the problem?

In the late 1990s, long hospital waiting times were symptomatic of a crisis in the quality seminars on measuring performance in developing countries.

The