

Basil Yamey

I was a graduate student at LSE in 1971-73, when Basil was already a senior professor in the department, but I had no contact with him at all because of our diverse areas of interest. Two years later I made the transition to the other side, joining my teac