1. Basic views of CFSP/ESDP in your country. What are the priorities for your government in CFSP? What are the key issues for your country?

According to the Austrian Security and Defence Doctrine¹, Austria's foreign and security policy (in the context of CFSP/ESDP) should be shaped in accordance with the following principles:

- Working effectively for Austria's interests at the bilateral and multilateral level as well as within the framework of the EU.
- Support of EU reforms, especially with a view to developing the CFSP/ESDP and safeguarding the Union's security policy interests.
- Continuous co-ordination with Austria's EU partners as the best way to promote Austrian national interests within the EU. Development of a partnership with like-minded states holding similar views which are linked by common regional interests (Regional Partnership Concept).
- Active participation in the ESDP in the spirit of solidarity; since ESDP is currently pursuing the aim of giving the EU the necessary means and capabilities as well as efficient decision-making structures for civil and military crisis management. Austria will make an appropriate contribution in terms of quantity as well as quality to the headline goals and capability goals of the EU.
- Priority support to any future efforts to realise the possibility of a common European defence envisaged in Article 17 of the EU treaty.
- Consistent further development of Austria's relations with NATO within the framework of the tailored co-operation programme. Full usage of the possibilities for co-operation and dialogue offered within the framework of the Partnership for Peace program. Close co-operation between the EU and NATO in the spirit of a strategic partnership is regarded as a prerequisite for the success of the ESDP.
- NATO's enlargement process is welcomed as a contribution to the strengthening of security and stability in Europe and is thereby also in Austria's interest. In light of the development within the field of security policy, Austria will continuously assess the value of NATO membership for its security and defence policy and the option of joining NATO will be kept open. Accession to NATO would only take place after prior consent of the Austrian people.

2. National Perceptions and Positions with regard to CFSP/ESDP issues

As mentioned above, Austria is in favour of strengthening CFSP as well as ESDP, and considers active participation in ESDP in a spirit of solidarity a priority. In order to avoid divisions within the EU such as during the Iraq crisis Austria would be in favour of the introduction of the community method into CFSP. At least qualified majority voting should be extended in the field of CFSP.

- The position of your country towards NATO:

Today, NATO constitutes not just a classical military alliance but a comprehensive security community which is based on democratic values and which renders a crucial contribution to peace and security world-wide through its stability-oriented policies. Austria advocates close and trustful co-operation between EU and NATO. Europe's security primarily depends on the effective functioning of the EU and of NATO. As mentioned above, close co-operation between the EU and NATO in the spirit of a strategic partnership is regarded as a prerequisite for the success of the ESDP. In a framework document signed in February 1995, Austria has expressed its intention to work for the achievement of the aims underlying the Partnership for Peace. From 1995 to 2001, Austria took part in the NATO-led multinational peace operation in Bosnia-Herzegovina (IFOR/SFOR) as a PfP partner. Since the autumn of 1999, Austria has been participating in the Kosovo operation (KFOR). Since 1997, the framework of "enhanced PfP" has made provision for all partners to achieve interoperability for the whole spectrum of peace support operations – i.e., including peace enforcement through combat missions. Austria is also actively involved in the work of the European Partnership Council (EAPC), PfP's political consultation forum.

- The role of the EU in crisis management:

Austria considers it very important that the EU is in a position to carry out civilian and military crisis management operations. Therefore Austria welcomes the conclusion of the so called Berlin Plus Agreements between the EU and NATO earlier this year which considerably buttressed the strategic partnership between the two organisations in the field of crisis management. It is furthermore of utmost importance that the Member States improve their military and civilian capabilities to carry out crisis management. Austria is ties tms

5. Specific remarks on the relation between Austria's national foreign and security policy and CFSP

Austria joined the EU without a reservation regarding its neutrality. Upon joining the European Union in 1995, Austria adopted the Union's entire legal and political "acquis", which then already comprised the Maastricht Treaty and its provisions on CFSP. Article J.4 of the treaty opened the perspective of a common defence policy which in due time could lead to a common defence.

A special provision (Article 23 f) was added to the Austrian Federal Constitution to ensure that participation in the CFSP would not be restricted by the Neutrality act. The Neutrality Act of 1955 was thereby further limited in its effect.
