lex, it can be difficult to ask about them in surveys or

Common practice

A consensus has developed that three main kinds of mediation are practised:

When I am on the internet at home, my parents use filters to block sites they do not want me to go to

When I am on the internet at home, my parents check to see which sites I have visited

It isn't easy to ask about parental control tools, as neither parents nor children may be clear about what exactly these are. The 2005 National Center for Missing and Exploited Children Survey (Finkelhor, 2006) asked children this way: 'Is there any software on this computer that